2010 RETALIATION COMPLAINT REPORT (LABOR CODE §98.75)

Background

Labor Code section 98.7, effective in 1986, provides that any person who believes he or she has been discharged or otherwise discriminated against in violation of any law under the jurisdiction of the Labor Commissioner may file a complaint with the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (DLSE) within six months after the occurrence of the violation. Through this Labor Code section the Labor Commissioner has jurisdiction to resolve disputes arising from 31 statutes and regulations.

In the event the Labor Commissioner determines a violation has occurred, the statute authorizes the Labor Commissioner to direct the violator to cease and desist from the violation and to take such action deemed necessary to remedy the violation including, where appropriate, rehiring or reinstatement of the aggrieved employee, reimbursement of lost wages and interest thereon, and/or payment of reasonable attorney's fees associated with any investigative hearing by the Labor Commissioner.

As noted above, DLSE is charged with enforcing 31 statutes and regulations prohibiting retaliation in the workplace. While the majority of these statutes are contained in the Labor Code, DLSE also enforces statutes contained in the Health and Safety Code, the Unemployment Insurance Code, and the Orders of the Industrial Welfare Commission. In addition to dissemination of information to the public through all of its District Offices, DLSE maintains a section of its website (<http://www.dir.ca.gov/dlse/dlseDiscrimination.html>) devoted to information available to both employers and employees on their rights and responsibilities pursuant to these various statutes and regulations. This section contains:

- instructions on how and where to file a complaint;
- the Summary of Procedures required by Labor Code section 98.7, provided in English, Spanish, Chinese, and Korean;
- an information sheet, available in English, Spanish, and Korean, titled Assurances of Participation Without Retaliation providing information specific to the right of an employee to speak to a representative of DLSE without fear of retaliation (Labor Code section 1102.5); and
- an information sheet, available in English and Spanish, titled Filing a Retaliation/Discrimination Complaint providing information on timelines within which to file a complaint and a listing with explanation of all Code sections under the jurisdiction of the Labor Commissioner.

Report of Performance

Labor Code section 98.75 requires the Labor Commissioner to submit a report annually on the complaints filed with the Labor Commissioner in the previous calendar year pursuant to Labor Code section 98.7 and Labor Code section 1197.5.¹

In calendar year 2010 DLSE received 2,678 retaliation complaints. Of those, 996 were accepted for investigation as appearing to be within DLSE jurisdiction. Complaints filed alleging retaliation may contain one or more alleged violations. For the purpose of reflecting all of the violations associated with the complaints filed, they are listed as a single issue as reflected in Exhibit A.

Exhibit A shows the number of complaints filed or opened under various Labor Code sections listed, and one section from both the Health and Safety and Unemployment Insurance Codes in 2009. Approximately 66% of all cases opened during the year were complaints filed pursuant to Labor Code section 98.6, which prohibits retaliation or discrimination in the workplace as a result of filing or intending to file a claim with the Labor Commissioner. The second largest group of complaints filed arose from alleged retaliation for reporting violations or non-compliance with state or federal law (Labor Code section 1102.5). These complaints comprised 32% of total complaints filed.

Exhibit B shows the disposition of the various retaliation cases where a Determination was issued in 2010. Of the 304 Determinations issued, 50 were in favor of the complainant (employee), and 254 were dismissed. Of the 50 Determinations in favor of the complainant, only four of the employers had yet complied with the Determination. Determinations in favor of employees were as follows: 28 were pending settlements; 5 were newly-issued cause findings where the time period allowed to file an appeal had not expired; 5 were in the process of being referred to the DLSE Legal Section for enforcement action; 4 were appealed to the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations; 2 were settled; 1 was filed in court; and 1 was closed because the respondent could not be located despite diligent search efforts.

Respectfully Submitted,

Denise Padres
Deputy Chief
