(Long Beach District Office)

OPINION AND DECISION
AFTER REMOVAL
(En Banc)

12 We granted removal on February 27, 2014 and issued a notice of intention (NIT) to allow the 13 parties and the Division of Workers' Compensation (DWC) an opportunity to address the issues raised by 14 our proposed holdings as to the Labor Code and Rule 35.5(e). Having considered defendant's response, 15 we now issue our Opinion and Decision After Removal (En Banc).

16 Defendant sought removal in response to a Findings of Fact issued by a workers' compensation 17 administrative law judge (WCJ) on October 31, 2013. The WCJ found in pertinent part that applicant 18 was entitled to a new panel Qualified Medical Evaluator (QME) for his two new injury claims and that 19 Rule 35.5(e)¹ did not apply.

20 Defendant contended that all of applicant's three claimed injuries involved the same parties and 21 one of the same body parts, and therefore, Rule 35.5(e) required that applicant be evaluated for his two 22 new claimed injuries by the original panel QME for his original claimed injury.

24 ¹ Division of Workers' Compensation – Qualified Medical Evaluator Regulations 35.5(e) (Cal. Code Regs., tit, 8, § 35.5(e)) hereafter, Rule 35.5(e) states that:

25 In the event a new injury or illness is claimed involving the same type of body part or body system and the 26 parties are the same, or in the event either party objects to any new medical issue within the evaluator's 27 scope of practice and clinical competence, the parties shall utilize to the extent possible the same evaluator who reported previously.

1 To secure uniformity of decision in the future, the Chairwoman of the Appeals Board, upon a 2 majority vote of its members, assigned this case to the Appeals Board as a whole for an en banc decision.
3 (Lab. Code, § 115.)²

4 Based upon our review of the relevant statutes and case law, we hold that:

5 (1) The Labor Code does not require an employee to return to the same 6 panel QME for an evaluation of a subsequent claim of injury.

7 (2) The requirement in Rule 35.5(e) that an employee return to the 8 same evaluator when a new injury or illness is claimed involving the same
9 parties and the same type of body parts is inconsistent with the Labor 10 Code, and therefore, this requirement is invalid.³

11 As our decision after removal (en banc), we affirm the Findings of Fact and return the matter to 12 the trial level.

13 BACKGROUND

14 Applicant is employed as a police officer for defendant and all of his claims of injury were filed 15 during his employment with defendant. All of applicant's claims of injury were filed while he was 16 represented by an attorney.

17 On February 12, 2009, applicant filed an application for adjudication with a Workers' 18 Compensation Claim Form DWC 1 (claim form) alleging a cumulative injury from February 9, 2008 to 19 February 9, 2009 to his back and ear (ADJ6779197). On September 14, 2009, applicant was evaluated 20 by panel QME J. Yogaratnam, M.D., in that case.

21 On October 4, 2010, applicant filed applications for adjudication with claim forms alleging a 22 specific injury of June 1, 2010 to his back, lower extremities and legs (ADJ7964720) and a specific 24 ² En banc decisions of the Appeals Board are binding precedent on all Appeals Board panels and WCJs.

27 1418, 1425, fn. 6 [67 Cal.Comp.Cases 236]; see Govt. Code, § 11425.60(b).) In addition to being adopted as a precedent decision in accordance with Labor Code section 115 and Appeals Board Rule 10341, this en banc decision is also being adopted as a precedent decision in accordance with Government Code section 11425.60(b).

³ Unless otherwise stated, all statutory references are to the Labor Code.

1 injury of August 31, 2010 to his back and left leg (ADJ7472140).⁴

2 On November 20, 2012, defendant petitioned to compel an evaluation of applicant's two 3 subsequent claims of injury by original panel QME Dr. Yogaratnam, but it did not seek to have applicant 4 reevaluated regarding his previous claim of cumulative injury. Applicant objected on November 28, 5 2012. On May 23, 2013, the parties proceeded to trial on the issue of whether applicant must return to 6 original panel QME Dr. Yogaratnam for his subsequent specific injury claims; the issue was ultimately 7 submitted for decision on August 20, 2013.

8 On October 31, 2013, the WCJ found in pertinent part that applicant was entitled to a new panel 9 QME in his specific injury cases and that Rule 35.5(e) did not apply.

10 Thereafter, defendant timely filed its petition for removal. We received an Answer from 11 applicant. The WCJ prepared a Report and Recommendation (Report) recommending that removal be 12 denied.

13 In our NIT, the parties and DWC were given twenty days to respond.⁵ In pertinent part, our NIT 14 ordered that responses were to be filed at the Office of the Commissioners, and not at a district office, 15 and that misfiled responses would not be accepted or considered. Yet, defendant filed its response on 16 March 21, 2014 at the San Francisco District Office. On March 24, 2014, the last day that a response 17 could be timely filed, defendant's response was brought to our attention. Although defendant misfiled its 18 response, the response was received in the Office of the Commissioners within the time allowed and we 19 accept it and consider it.

20 In its response to our NIT, defendant contends that Rule 35.5(e) follows the Labor Code. In 21 support of its argument, it cites sections 4062.3(j), 4062.3(k), and 4067, all sections which concern a 22 single claim form and not subsequent claims of injury. It also cites Frink v. Shasta-Tehama-Trinity Joint 23 Community College 2012 Cal.Wrk.Comp. P.D. LEXIS 67 and McDuffie v. Los Angeles County

24
25 ⁴ The Employer's Section on the lower half of all three of the claim forms is blank. There is no information 26 in the record regarding whether any other claim forms were received by or completed by defendant. Each claim form was served on defendant at the time it was filed at the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board (WCAB).

27 ⁵ We did not receive a response from DWC.

3 DISCUSSION

4 I. The Labor Code does not require an employee to return to the same QME for an 5 evaluation of a subsequent claim of injury.

6 Defendant contended that Rule 35.5(e) applies and because Rule 35.5(e) applies, applicant must 7 return to original panel QME Dr. Yogaratnam. However, even though the sole basis of defendant's 8 argument is that Rule 35.5(e) applies, we consider the relevant statutory provisions before we consider 9 the application of Rule 35.5(e).

10 "A fundamental rule of statutory construction is that a court should ascertain the intent of the 11 Legislature so as to effectuate the purpose of the law." (DuBois v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 5 12 Cal.4th 382, 387 [58 Cal.Comp.Cases 286] (DuBois); Nickelsberg v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1991)
13 54 Cal.3d 288, 294 [56 Cal.Comp.Cases 476]; Moyer v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1973) 10 Cal.3d 14 222, 230 [38 Cal. Comp. Cases 652].) "In construing a statute, our first task is to look to the language of 15 the statute itself. (citation) When the language is clear and there is no uncertainty as to the legislative 16 intent, we look no further and simply enforce the statute according to its terms." (DuBois, supra, 5 17 Cal.4th at p. 387; accord, Atlantic Richfield Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (Arvizu) (1982) 31 18 Cal.3d 715, 726 [47 Cal. Comp. Cases 500]; see Code Civ. Proc., §§ 1858, 1859; Rhiner v. Workers' 19 Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 4 Cal.4th 1213, 1217 [58 Cal.Comp.Cases 172].) Hence, we begin by 20 reviewing the language of the Labor Code sections on medical-legal evaluations by panel QMEs.

21 Section 4060(a) provides in pertinent part that "this section shall apply to disputes over the 22 compensability of any injury. . ."

23 Section 4060(c) states that:

24 If a medical evaluation is required to determine compensability at any time 25 after the filing of the claim form, and the employee is represented by an 26 attorney, a medical evaluation to determine compensability shall be 27 obtained only by the procedure provided in Section 4062.2. (Italics added.)

1 Section 4060(d) states that:

2 If a medical evaluation is required to determine compensability at any time 3 after the claim form is filed, and the employee is not represented by an 4 attorney, the employer shall provide the employee with notice either that 5 the employer requests a comprehensive medical evaluation to determine 6 compensability or that the employer has not accepted liability and the 7 employee may request a comprehensive medical evaluation to determine 8 compensability. Either party may request a comprehensive medical 9 evaluation to determine compensability. The evaluation shall be obtained 10 only by the procedure provided in Section 4062.1. (Italics added.)

7 Section 4062.2(a) states that:

8 Whenever a comprehensive medical evaluation is required to resolve any 9 dispute arising out of an injury or a claimed injury occurring on or after 10 January 1, 2005, and the employee is represented by an attorney, the 11 evaluation shall be obtained only as provided in this section. (Italics 12 added.)

11 Preliminarily then, section 4060(a), (c) and (d) and section 4062.2(a)⁶ all refer to a single claim 12 form, injury or claimed injury and require that any medical-legal evaluations to determine compensability 13 of that injury or claimed injury occur under the procedures provided in sections 4062.1 or 4062.2.

14 Section 4062.3(j) states that:

15 Upon completing a determination of the disputed medical issue, the 16 medical evaluator shall summarize the medical findings on a form 17 prescribed by the administrative director and shall serve the formal 18 medical evaluation and the summary form on the employee and the 19 employer. The medical evaluation shall address all contested medical 20 issues arising from all injuries reported on one or more claim forms prior 21 to the date of the employee's initial appointment with the medical 22 evaluator. (Italics and underscoring added.)

20 Section 4064(a) states that:

21 The employer shall be liable for the cost of each reasonable and necessary 22 comprehensive medical-legal evaluation obtained by the employee 23 pursuant to Sections 4060, 4061, and 4062. Each comprehensive medical- 24 legal evaluation shall address all contested medical issues arising from all 25 injuries reported on one or more claim forms, except medical treatment 26 recommendations, which are subject to utilization review as provided by 27 Section 4610, and objections to utilization review determinations, which ⁶ Unlike section 4062.2, section 4062.1 does not contain a subdivision like section 4062.2(a) for unrepresented employees, but sections 4060(a) and (d) and section 4061(i) all specify that section 4062.1 applies to unrepresented employees.

1 are subject to independent medical review as provided by Section 4610.5.
2 (Italics and underscoring added.)

3 Considering section 4062.3(j) and section 4064(a) together, both sections state that a medical 4 evaluation shall address “all medical issues arising from all injuries reported on one or more claim 5 forms.”⁷ Both sections refer to an injury reported on a claim form as the operative act, and not to a date 6 of injury, a report of injury other than on a claim form⁸, or the filing of an application with the WCAB.
7 Under section 5401, an employer must provide a claim form and an injured worker must file a claim form 8 with an employer.⁹ Hence, the reported date under sections 4062.3(j) and 4064(a) must be the filing date 9 as defined by section 5401 because only section 5401 refers to filing a claim form. Because the date the 10 claim form is filed with employer is the operative act, the date of filing of the claim form determines 11 which evaluator must consider which injury claim(s). This is significant in that the date a claim of injury 12 is reported is often not the same as the date that an injury is claimed to have occurred. Consequently, it 13 is foreseeable that a claim might be reported after an original evaluation, but be for a claim of injury on a 14 date before the original evaluation, and even in those circumstances, the result would be that the date the 15 claim is reported is still the operative date.

16 Next, section 4062.3(k) states that:

17 If, after a medical evaluation is prepared, the employer or the employee 18 subsequently objects to any new medical issue, the parties, to the extent 19 possible, shall utilize the same medical evaluator who prepared the 20 previous evaluation to resolve the medical dispute. (Italics added.)

20 ⁷ Although section 4064(a) does not include the phrase “before the appointment takes place,” since section 21 4064(a) provides that these claims of injury had to have been “reported,” those claims had to have been made before the evaluation.

22 ⁸ Section 5400 concerns notice of injury with no reference to a claim form. Section 5402 concerns notice 23 and knowledge of injury and section 5402(b) provides for a ninety day period after “the date the claim form is filed under [s]ection 5401.”

24 ⁹ Section 5401(a) requires that an employer must provide a claim form “[w]ithin one working day of receiving notice or knowledge of injury under [s]ection 5400 or 5402.” Section 5401(c) states that:

25 “The completed claim form shall be filed with the employer by the injured employee, or, in the case of 26 death, by a dependent of the injured employee, or by an agent of the employee or dependent. . . . [A] claim 27 form is deemed filed when it is personally delivered to the employer or received by the employer by first-class or certified mail. A dated copy of the completed form shall be provided by the employer to the employer’s insurer and to the employee, dependent, or agent who filed the claim form.”

1 As discussed above, sections 4062.3(j) and 4064(a) provide that a medical evaluation shall 2 address “all medical issues arising from all injuries reported on one or more claim forms,” and in keeping 3 with that statutory language, section 4062.3(k) directs an employee to return to the same evaluator who 4 conducted the previous evaluation when a new medical issue arises relating to the previously reported 5 injury claim(s). As a matter of construction, a prior evaluation of that previously reported injury claim(s) 6 must have already occurred at the time the medical issue arises, and consequently, the employee must 7 then return to the same evaluator for the same reported injury claim(s).¹⁰ In contrast, there is no 8 reference in section 4062.3(k) to subsequent claims of injury.

9 Finally, section 4067 states that:

10 If the jurisdiction of the appeals board is invoked pursuant to Section 5803 11 upon the grounds that the effects of the injury have recurred, increased, 12 diminished, or terminated, a formal medical evaluation shall be obtained pursuant to this article.

13 “When an agreed medical evaluator or a qualified medical evaluator 14 selected by an unrepresented employee from a three-member panel has previously made a formal medical evaluation of the same or similar issues, 15 the subsequent or additional formal medical evaluation shall be conducted 16 by the same agreed medical evaluator or qualified medical evaluator, 17 unless the workers' compensation judge has made a finding that he or she 18 did not rely on the prior evaluator's formal medical evaluation, any party 19 contested the original medical evaluation by filing an application for 20 adjudication, the unrepresented employee hired an attorney and selected a 21 qualified medical evaluator to conduct another evaluation pursuant to 22 subdivision (b) of Section 4064, or the prior evaluator is no longer 23 qualified or readily available to prepare a formal medical evaluation, in 24 which case Sections 4061 or 4062, as the case may be, shall apply as if 25 there had been no prior formal medical evaluation. (Italics added.)

26 Section 4067 sets forth specific procedures governing the reopening of a claim, and like section 27 4062.3(k), requires that an employee return to the same evaluator for new medical issues arising out of a particular injury claim. Section 4067 also provides that under certain circumstances an employee does not have to return to the same evaluator even when it is for an evaluation of the same claim of injury, and

¹⁰ Similarly, section 4062(a) provides in pertinent part that when a party objects to a medical issue not covered by sections 4060 or 4061 and not subject to section 4610, a medical evaluation must be obtained under the procedures in sections 4061.1 and 4062.2. And, section 4062(a) only refers to medical issues and not to subsequent claims of injury or body parts. In addition, section 4061(i) also requires that evaluations of permanent impairment be obtained in accordance with sections 4061.1 and 4062.2.

1 when that occurs, sections 4061 and 4062 apply “as if there had been no prior formal medical 2 evaluation.” Like section 4062.3(k), there is no reference in section 4067 to subsequent claims of injury.

3 Accordingly, after review of the pertinent statutes, we conclude that the Labor Code requires that 4 all medical-legal evaluations be obtained as set forth under sections 4062.1 or 4062.2 and that the Labor 5 Code requires that an evaluator discuss all medical issues arising from all reported claims of injury at the 6 time of an evaluation. Further, we conclude that the Labor Code generally requires that an employee 7 return to the original evaluator when a new medical issue arises in the same claim of injury and when an 8 employee reopens the same claim. But, we see no provision in the Labor Code that requires an employee 9 to return to the same evaluator for a subsequent claim of injury. And, we see no provision that 10 distinguishes between procedures for evaluation of claims of injury based on the same or different body 11 parts. Thus, we conclude that the Labor Code does not require an employee to return to the same 12 evaluator for a subsequent claim of injury.

13 II. The requirement in Rule 35.5(e) that an employee return to the same evaluator when a 14 new injury or illness is claimed involving the same parties and the same type of body parts is inconsistent with the Labor Code, and therefore, this requirement is invalid.

15 We now consider Rule 35.5(e) in light of our conclusion that the Labor Code does not require an 16 employee to return to the same evaluator for a subsequent claim of injury. As discussed above, we 17 conclude that the Labor Code provisions concerning medical-legal evaluations only require the employee 18 to return to the same evaluator when a new medical issue arises out of a previously evaluated injury. In 19 contrast, Rule 35.5(e) imposes an additional requirement that an employee return to the same evaluator 20 when a new injury or illness is claimed that involves the same body parts and the same parties.

21 The WCAB has exclusive original jurisdiction to determine the validity of regulations adopted by 22 the Administrative Director (AD). (Lab. Code, § 5300(f); see Mendoza v. Huntington Hospital Workers' 23 Comp. Appeals Bd. (2010) 75 Cal.Comp.Cases 634, 640 (Appeals Board en banc) [discussing the 24 WCAB’s jurisdiction to determine the validity of Rule 30(d)(3)].)

25 In considering the validity of a regulation, “our task is to inquire into the legality of the . . .
26 regulation, not its wisdom.” (Moore v. Cal. State Bd. of Accountancy (1992) 2 Cal.4th 999, 1014; accord, 27 State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (2004) 32 Cal.4th 1029, 1040 (State Farm).)

1 Thus, we are “limited to determining whether the regulation (1) is within the scope of the authority 2 conferred (Gov. Code, § 11373) and (2) is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute.”
3 (State Farm, 32 Cal.4th at p. 1040 [quoting from Agric. Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 4 Cal.3d 392, 411 (Agric. Labor Relations Bd.) (internal citations and quotation marks omitted)].)
5 “Although in determining whether . . . regulations are reasonably necessary to effectuate the statutory 6 purpose we will not intervene in the absence of an arbitrary or capricious decision, ‘we need not make 7 such a determination if the regulations transgress statutory power.’” (Cal. Assn. of Psychology Providers 8 v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal.3d 1, 11–12 (Cal. Assn. of Psychology Providers [quoting from Morris v. Williams 9 (1967) 67 Cal.2d 733, 749 (Morris) (italics added)].)

10 With regard to this latter point, we are guided by two of the central provisions of the 11 administrative rule-making provisions of the Administrative Procedures Act [APA] (Gov. Code, § 11340 12 et seq.), to which the AD is subject.¹¹ Government Code section 11342.2 provides that “no regulation 13 adopted is valid or effective unless consistent and not in conflict with the statute.” Hence, it has been 14 said that “[w]hen a statute confers upon a state agency the authority to adopt regulations . . . , the 15 agency's regulations must be consistent, not in conflict with the statute” (Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 16 Cal.3d 669, 679) and that “[a] regulation that is inconsistent with the statute it seeks to implement is 17 invalid.” (Esberg v. Union Oil Co. (2002) 28 Cal.4th 262, 269.) “No matter how altruistic its motives, an 18 administrative agency has no discretion to promulgate a regulation that is inconsistent with the governing 19 statutes.” (Mendoza, supra, 75 Cal.Comp.Cases at p. 640; see Agric. Labor Relations Bd., supra, 16 20 Cal.3d at p. 419.) Government Code section 11342.1 provides that “[e]ach regulation adopted, to be 21 effective, shall be within the scope of authority conferred.” Thus, it has been said that “administrative 22 regulations which exceed the scope of the enabling statute are invalid and have no force or life” (Woods 23 v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal.3d 668, 680) and that “[a]dministrative regulations that . . . enlarge [a 24 statute's] scope are void and courts not only may, but it is their obligation to strike down such 25

26 _____ 27 ¹¹ The APA makes every regulation subject to its rulemaking provisions unless expressly exempted by statute. (Gov. Code, § 11346.) By statute, DWC is exempted only from the APA's provision regarding Superior Court review of agency regulations. (Gov. Code, § 11351(c).)

1 regulations.” (Cal. Assn. of Psychology Providers, supra, 51 Cal.3d at p. 11 [quoting from Morris, supra, 2 67 Cal.2d at p. 748].) “[T]he Legislature possesses the plenary constitutional authority to create and 3 enforce a workers’ compensation system” and accordingly, a regulation promulgated by the AD which 4 contradicts the Workers' Compensation Act is invalid. (Boehm & Associates v. Workers' Comp. Appeals 5 Bd. (Lopez) (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 513, 519 [64 Cal.Comp.Cases 1350].)

6 As set forth in our discussion above, we conclude that the Labor Code requires that all medical-7 legal evaluations be obtained as set forth under sections 4062.1 or 4062.2 and requires that an evaluator 8 discuss all medical issues arising from all reported claims of injury at the time of an evaluation. We also 9 conclude that the Labor Code generally requires that an employee return to the original evaluator when a 10 new medical issue arises in the same claim of injury and when an employee reopens the same claim.
11 But, the Labor Code makes no reference to same or different body parts. Therefore, unlike Rule 35.5(e), 12 the Labor Code does not require an employee to return to the original evaluator when another claim of 13 injury is filed even when the subsequent claim of injury involves the same body parts and the same 14 parties. The language of the statutes is mandatory, and thereby controls.

15 Rule 35.5(e) imposes an unwarranted limitation on the Labor Code, particularly sections 4060(a), 16 (c), and (d), 4062.1, 4062.2, 4062.2(a), 4062.3(j), 4062.3(k), 4064(a), and 4067. Thus, Rule 35.5(e) is 17 invalid to the extent that it imposes the additional requirement that an employee return to the same 18 evaluator when a new injury or illness is claimed that involves the same body parts and the same parties.
19 While parties are not precluded from agreeing to return to the same evaluator for subsequent claims of 20 injury, based on the foregoing, we conclude that an employee may be evaluated by a new evaluator for 21 each injury or injuries reported on a claim form after an evaluation has taken place. Thus, regardless of 22 whether a subsequent claim of injury is filed with the same employer or a different employer and 23 regardless of whether injury is claimed to the same body parts or to different body parts, when a 24 subsequent claim of injury is filed, the Labor Code allows the employee and/or the employer to request a 25 new evaluator. In keeping with the limitations set forth in sections 4062.3(j) and 4064(a), at the time of 26 an evaluation the evaluator shall consider all issues arising out of any claims that were reported before 27

1 the evaluation, and if several subsequent claims of injury are filed before the evaluation by the new 2 evaluator takes place, that one new evaluator shall consider all of those claims of injury.

3 We are aware that in a particular case it may be beneficial to one side to seek a new evaluator and 4 that unfortunately, a subsequent claim of injury could be filed by an employee or an employer with the 5 goal of “doctor-shopping,” potentially leading to increased medical-legal costs and delays. However, 6 since these provisions of the Labor Code apply equally to both employees and employers, we do not see 7 that either side gains an overall advantage. We also remind all participants that it is constitutionally 8 required that workers’ compensation proceedings be expeditious. (Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 4.)

9 Here, while we agree with the WCJ’s decision that applicant is entitled to a new panel QME, we 10 do not believe that the result turns on the application of Rule 35.5(e). Applicant attended a medical-11 legal evaluation by Dr. Yogaratnam for his claimed cumulative injury and because applicant was 12 represented that evaluation necessarily would have been pursuant to section 4062.2.¹² Subsequently, 13 applicant reported two specific injury claims.¹³ Even where, as here, an applicant’s three claimed 14 injuries involve some of the same body parts and the same parties, the statutes make no distinction 15 between claims or injuries to same or different body parts and same or different parties. Applicant’s two 16 claims of specific injury were reported after the original evaluation but before a subsequent evaluation by 17 a new evaluator. Thus, under sections 4062.3(j) and section 4064(a), applicant is entitled to be evaluated 18 by one new evaluator for his two subsequent claims of injury. Therefore, we conclude that applicant is 19 not required to return to Dr. Yogaratnam for an evaluation of his two subsequent claims of injury and 20 may be evaluated by a new panel QME.

23 ¹² Although the case of an unrepresented applicant is not before us, it appears that the difference between an unrepresented and a represented applicant is whether section 4062.1 or 4062.2 applies. Accordingly, we do not believe that whether applicant was represented or unrepresented would change the outcome of this decision.

24 ¹³ Here, there is nothing in the record to indicate whether applicant filed claim forms for his subsequent 25 claims of injury with his employer before he filed claim forms at the WCAB on October 4, 2010. However, the 26 original evaluation occurred on September 14, 2009, almost a year before the dates of the two subsequent claimed 27 injuries. Although the issue does not arise in the case before us, we point out that in other cases where multiple claim forms were filed for the same date of injury, the date that the first of those multiple claim forms was filed could be significant in determining which panel QME conducts an evaluation.

1 Accordingly, based upon our review of the relevant statutes and case law, we hold that:

2 (1) The Labor Code does not require an employee to return to the same
3 panel QME for an evaluation of a subsequent claim of injury.

4 (2) The requirement in Rule 35.5(e) that an employee return to the 5 same evaluator when a new injury or illness is claimed involving the same
6 parties and the same type of body parts is inconsistent with the Labor 7 Code, and therefore, this requirement is invalid.

8 We also affirm the Findings of Fact and return the matter to the trial level.
